The Democrats of the Fourteenth district have nominated General S. F. Seiger for Congress.

The execution of the murderers of the late Prince of Servia was a novelty short. The second culprit did not die until three volleys had been fired at him. After the first volley, when five bullets had struck him, he stood erect on a box which was under him, and on the box he remained, the officer in command thought he was dead, but on giving the wounded man a swing to his foot again, and commanded each soldier to fire another shot. This was done, and the second volley of bullets sent him down again, the body writhing and groaning on the ground. The third file of soldiers were then ordered to step close to to the poor fellow and put an end to his misery, which they did by firing a volley of bullets into his head. Fourteen bullets altogether were fired.

The mail car attached to the through western train left New York Wednesday night, by the Central Railroad of New Jersey, took fire near Bethlehem, Pa., and the contents nearly burned. Judge Woodward addressed a Democratic meeting in Harrisburg, last evening, and, after he had spoken for about an hour, the meeting adjourned, but not before it had unanimously tendered him a vote of thanks for the able manner in which he had discharged the duties of the office.

Relative to the Congressional difficulty in the Fourteenth District, the Wheeling Register says: "We understand that the Democratic conference will meet at Morgantown next week, and nominate a candidate for the vacancy. This arrangement now is to cut a convention, and as Gaston will not run in the district, the nomination will probably go to Armstrong Pettis, and Mr. Whalen will have to be content in the cold. Whether this is the programme will be demonstrated in a few days. Gaston's friends will not support the nominee, that is certain."

The Democratic Clubs of the District called to-night in refraining the old hall used by the Democrats in the days of secession. There was a large and orderly crowd present. Wm. Gilbert was one of the main speakers.

Special Despatch to the Commercial.

Washington, D. C., August 20, 1868.

Senator Doolittle, of Wisconsin, spoke in this city to-day, to the immense crowd ever before assembled in this place to listen to the speech of any statesman. He came to any address and political speaker. Not even Henry Ward was on the ground during the delivery of his remarks, and not a single chair was heard on the outside during the entire time. He was received with the loud in a speech, from a balcony of the National Hotel, and was frequently applauded by cheers. He spoke in favor of the Democratic party, and the Democratic candidates for President and Vice President.

Democratic Rejoicing.

Special Despatch to the Commercial.

Washington, D. C., August 21, 1868.

The Democratic Clubs of this city are now in process of organization, and will soon be in full working order. Their object is to secure the election of the Democratic candidates for President and Vice President of the United States.

Democratic Rejoicing.

The Daily Commercial

PUBLISHED EVERY AFTERNOON.

THE COMMERCIAL is the largest daily paper in the State, and goes daily into fourth more families than any other paper in Pittsburgh. As the only Pittsburgh paper that sends the telegraph dispatches, gives full market reports, and all the news of the day, it is the primary object in the minds of merchants, manufacturers and capitalists, to have the latest and most reliable information relative to the business of the country, and the condition of the markets, in order that they may buy and sell to the best advantage. The Commercial, therefore, is the best medium through which to reach the business men of Pittsburgh, and the interior trade of Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio, Western Virginia, and Northern West Virginia, and is the best paper in which to advertise Dry Goods, Groceries, Hardware, Iron, Coal, Oil, Lumber, Agricultural Implements, Machinery, Patent Medicines, Boots and Shoes, Hats and Caps, Clothing, Jewelry, Fancy Goods, Notions, Books, Stationery, Carpets, Oil Cloths, Furniture, Pianos, Sewing Machines, Safes, Scales, Patent Rights, Steamboats, Railroads, Insurance, Banking, Auctions, Sheriff's Sales, Executors' Sales, Assignees' Sales, Trustees' Sales, Commissioners' Sales, Sales of Real Estate, Sales of Personal Property, Proposals for Supplies, Notices to Contractors, Notices to Builders, Notices to Mechanics, Notices to Lumbermen, Notices to Boatmen, Notices to Coal Operators, Notices to Iron Manufacturers, Notices to Oil Producers, Notices to Oil Refiners, Notices to Oil Shippers, Notices to Oil Dealers, Notices to Oil Brokers, Notices to Oil Commission Merchants, Notices to Oil Forwarders, Notices to Oil Agents, Notices to Oil Jobbers, Notices to Oil Exporters, Notices to Oil Importers, Notices to Oil Manufacturers, Notices to Oil Consumers, Notices to Oil Users, Notices to Oil Buyers, Notices to Oil Sellers, Notices to Oil Traders

FRIDAY MORNING, AUGUST 21, 1868.

A Democratic Meeting at Mozart's Saturday Evening—A Pittsburgh Success for the City.

Correspondence of Associated Press.

Harrisburg, Pa., August 20, 1868.

A large and enthusiastic gathering of the loyal voters of Ohio assembled, this evening in the grove in front of Smith's Hotel at this place, for the purpose of organizing a Grant and Colfax Club. Delegations were present from Georgetown, Unionville and Paxton. A large and commodious stand had been erected, and was handsomely decorated with flags and banners. A fine cannon was placed in one end of the grove, which, at short intervals, sounded the tidings of coming victory. The lower end was ground, and a fine platform, as well as tiers of seats, were made to accommodate the people.

The meeting was called to order by Captain Wm. P. Dawson, who nominated S. S. Pomeroy, the President, assisted by quite a number of the Presidents and Secretaries. Some twelve or fifteen speeches were made in favor of the election of Gen. Grant and Colfax. Mr. Pomeroy, was one of the delegates from Ohio, and there is no doubt but he was one of the most eloquent speakers on the ground. He pictured in glowing colors the Democratic party as a monstrous man-Thomas, and in his remarks on the ground-hog case proved conclusively to every unprejudiced mind that if we would have peace we must elect Grant and Colfax.

Mr. Cook was the choice of the Hon. Thomas Nicholson, of this county, who, notwithstanding his time was limited, made some telling points in one of the largest of ovations.

After Mr. Nicholson had concluded his speech, and made up the band, the committee appointed to draft a constitution for the Club reported. The report was received with three cheers for Grant and Colfax. The name chosen for the Club was "The Grant and Colfax Club of Harrisburg." The people here are truly alive to the importance of the coming election.

Jeff Davis in Liverpool—An Apology from Jewish Tradesmen.

From the Liverpool Post, August 7.

Mr. Jefferson Davis is now in Liverpool. He arrived on Wednesday and put up at the Adelphi. We will not apply to him Byron's address to Napoleon on his downfall—

> But he is now a man of sorrow, broken down in health—entitled to pity but not to pardon. Because, during the years he was in power, he did as much misery to the civilized world. He introduced rebellion into a peaceful, happy and prosperous country, and the result of that act was the death of at least 300,000 men during the event, the impoverishment of America, the commercial disturbance of the universe and very possibly a financial suffering all over Europe and the United States, such as probably there is hardly an individual in the town who is not more in consequence of the American rebellion—even Jewish tradesmen. Mr. Davis may plead success, if not entire justification, from the history of mankind. Rebellion is detestable, according to French, when it fails; when it succeeds it is the highest type of patriotism. This is Locke's doctrine, and it is, we suppose, the admitted doctrine of Europe. There were formerly few crimes more expressive than that of rebellion, and hardly one but found mercy at last. In our day, however, it is a nation's existence or a perfect solution for political fraud. Mr. Davis did not, subsequently, recognize the fact. He committed a terrible mistake, or one of the greatest mistakes on record, in order to try his fortune once, and the mistake was based on calculations which surprise and thoughtless men on every side have made.
> Mr. Davis is entitled to the mercy made for the meanest people by Mr. Disraeli. Whatever may have been their motives they were an instrument in the hands of Divine Providence, for it is our conviction that the Christ in his daily rebound the sword from the bridge of his. Mr. Davis misunderstood the people of America from the day of victory. His originated a rebellion which terminated in universal liberty. The negro stood up a man and was enfranchised on the ground from around him. Four millions of human beings were set free, and there is neither vassal nor slave in America. In wresting, too, that last from the Southern rebellion a great debt has conferred the negro, civilized more active people, and nations upon a settlement. Mr. Davis has done it all—not intend to do it, but the result nevertheless, something for mankind to rejoice at, something the world has to say and even to rejoice over the way to great statesmen for the horrors and sin of both.

A Description of Yeddo.

Yeddo is the chief city of Japan, and the residence of the Tycoon. It lies on the southeast shore of the island of Nipon, province of Musasa, at the bottom of the bay of Yeddo (latitude, 35 deg. 40 N. North; longitude, 140 deg. East. The population has been estimated at from 500,000 to 1,000,000, but it is possible that the list of these numbers has exceeded the mark. The city of Yeddo is surrounded by a moat, and protected by numerous castles and fortifications of the river Yedogawa, that empties its waters into the bay. Two large canals run from the river to the square (or square) of the Tycoon's palace, its streets are regular and well paved, and the houses are of wood and one story high. The streets are wide and the canals deep, and the whole city is intersected by numerous canals and bridges. The houses are built of wood, and of the roofing tiles, thatch is the only one forming of incessant mention.

Captain Isaac Ingalls, a conspicuous Tammany Hall politician, in a recent Sumner and Blair speech in New York city, said: "He loved the American flag itself, as any other man, so long as it represented a Government in the hands of the Democratic party, and no longer."

The address of the Irish Campaign Club, setting forth the reasons why Irishmen should vote for the Republican ticket, is a spirit-stirring document, well written, and it is not easy to see how answers can be found for the arguments advanced. Irishmen should read the address and ask themselves, those who are Democrats, if they can give valid answer to the facts set forth in the able campaign document.

The London correspondent of the New York Herald says: "It may amuse to add a line of personal news. Mr. Fenton Wood is still in London, and to the great delight of his friends is making steady progress towards recovery. He is almost as well as ever, and can walk for hours, and does so most days. Mr. Wood's many friends in Pittsburgh will be glad to hear that he is in such good health, and that the prospects of his recovery are so favorable."

The Liverpool newspapers state that on August 5th, Mr. Jefferson Davis, accompanied by a few friends, visited the aircraft at Crystal Palace Grove. There was no particular demonstration, but all the gentlemen on the train continued in giving Mr. Davis an occasional cheer as the train moved on. Mr. Davis, on the way to the train, was cheered on arrival at the station by a few persons who were assembled in the neighborhood.

Gen. Geo. Stoneman, of California, who was in command of the Department of the Cumberland during the latter part of the war, and who was a prisoner in Libby prison for a time, is now in Europe. He is a cousin of Governor Stoneman, of California.

Gen. Geo. Weitzel, of the University of Oxford, writes it is no secret that the report of a meeting call from him to the United States is not true. "Would," he writes to an American friend, "as I should like that, as a believer in marriage and religion, I was carrying out the one and performing the other many excellent reasons, but I am not going to America, nor do I know any one who is going on my account."

The New Roman Catholic Bishop, Poquette, Rochester, consecrated on the 16th inst., in Cincinnati, and recently appointed by the Pope Bishop of Cincinnati and Utah, will have a missionary field two hundred miles in width and thirteen hundred in length, with no means of conveyance save the railroad. He might have said, but it was no time for any one to speak in the way of the nation's safety. Every man, the whole stock of butter on hand was rancid, and Mr. Grant lost 25,000 instead of casting 26,000.

Bishop Johnson's reception in England was cordial. His name was well known in diplomatic circles, and the people generally entertained a good opinion of his man.

Mrs. E. Cady Stanton visited her mother a few days ago, who objected to her for not exercising the franchise as she did the Republican. Mrs. Stanton tried to explain, but the old lady was inexorable. "Father" said she, with a gesture of contempt, "if he knew half of the struggle to secure emancipation, how will he stand election?"

Mr. Bishop Rogers, of Newburyport, aged ninety-five, on Sunday walked five miles and preached two hours of sermon and attended to his usual domestic duties. Five generations of descendants (great-grandchildren) called on him that day. He prided himself on the liberality of his people, who took them to meeting regularly, and on the fact that he had done so ever since.

An accident about going Tong has got into the newspapers. He and his father were now coming walking to church. On the way they got into conversation with an old colored man, who assured them that he had enjoyed religion from the opening of his own, "so long ago as he remembered anything." By the way they came to the village. "No, sah, no such good church in the village. Why, sah, the preacher don't know how to preach a Christian sermon at all. He don't give out a hymn for you to sing, and don't pray for you to pray, and don't preach a sermon for you to hear. He just reads from a book, and all the congregation sleeps."

The Boston correspondent of the New York Tribune remarks in the report that Hall, Savage was appointed by acclaim of Charity, who was moderating him. Such a proceeding would be contrary to the rules and usages of the Roman Catholic Church.

The London correspondent of the New York Tribune says: "It may amuse to add a line of personal news.
